

IIOM Conference & Workshop – Munich 2021 – postponed to 2022 due to COVID19 pandemic

Due to the continuing uncertainty resulting from the global COVID19 pandemic, the International Institute of Obsolescence Management (IIOM) has decided to postpone its 4th International Conference and Workshop in Munich, Germany from May 2021 to 2022. In its place, IIOM is planning a one day online conference and exhibition in May 2021, and details of this event will be announced later.

Message from Wolfgang Heinbach, President of IIOM

“I was looking forward to welcoming IIOM members to Munich in May 2021 for the first IIOM Conference & Workshop to be held outside the United Kingdom and it is very disappointing for me that we have had to postpone the conference to 2022. With the uncertainty generated by the continuing COVID19 pandemic, the restrictions on business travel budgets and the unwillingness of people to travel, we thought that it was best to run an online event in 2021, and move the physical conference and workshops to 2022, still in Munich. I would particularly like to thank our sponsors and members for their continuing support in these difficult times.”
